Montreal

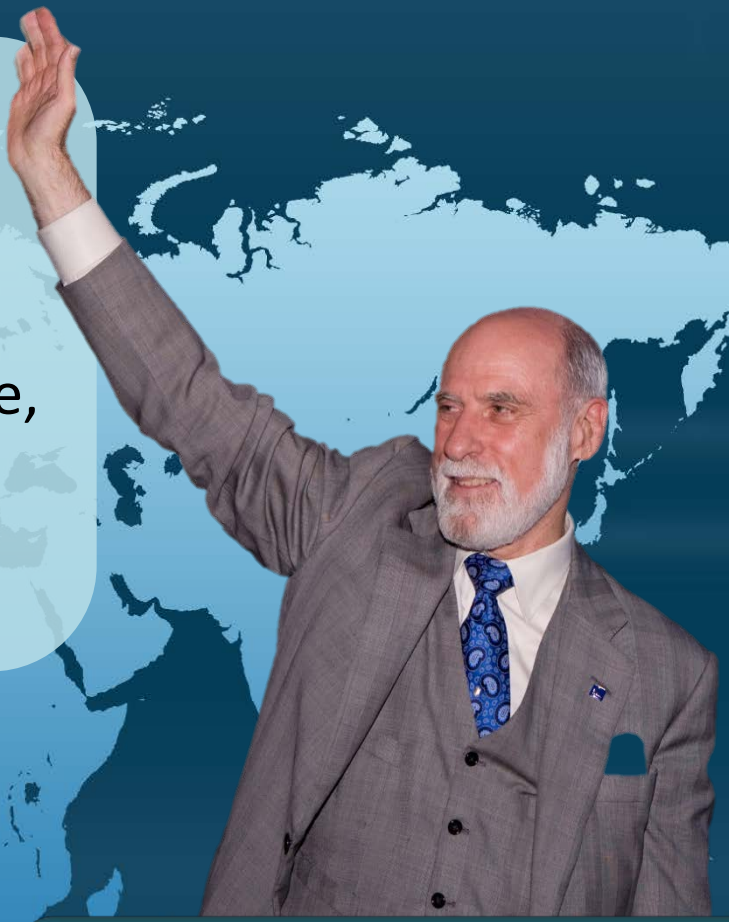
June 2003

The ccTLD community and ERC enter the final stage of the discussions on the Bylaws. Bylaw changes are adopted by the ICANN Board

What we saw yesterday was the result of a thorough, sometimes painful, but well done bottom up process. We've been standing here defending this principle and abiding by it, and I don't think it's the business of the Board to change something that came in this bottom up fashion.

Ivan Mouru Campos

A truly remarkable milestone in the history of ICANN's efforts.
I congratulate the ERC, the ccTLD operators, the assistance committee, and the GAC for their remarkable work in producing this result.

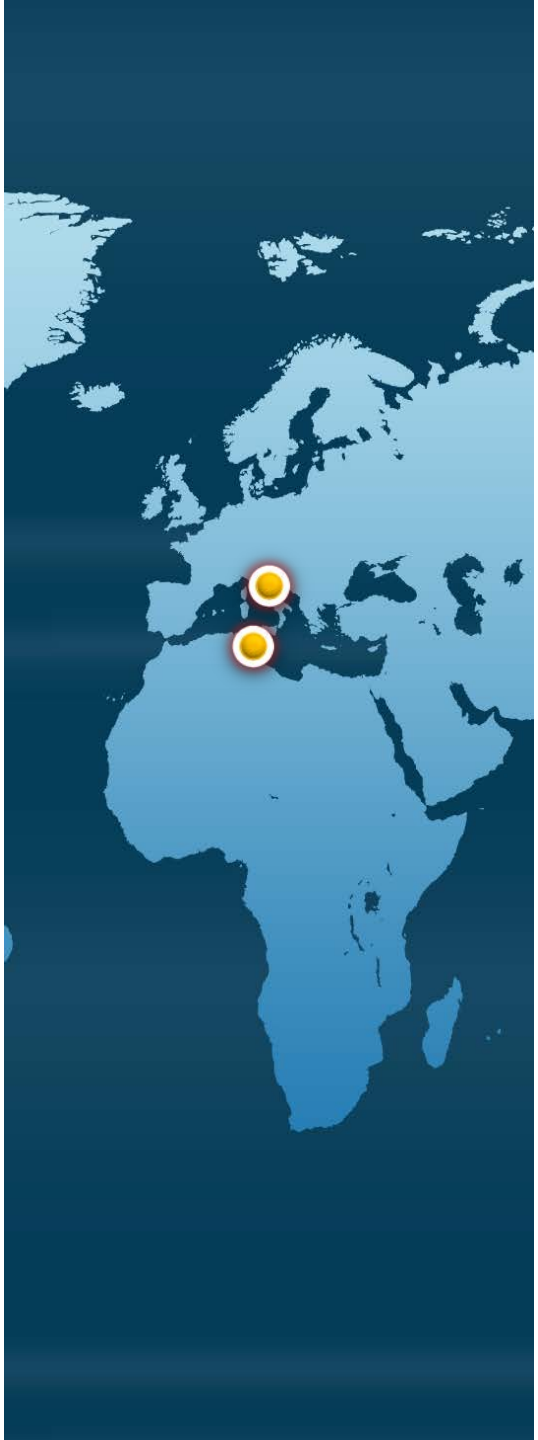


Vint Cerf

I would just say that the constitution of the ccNSO bears witness to the effort of one man in particular, who was Hans Kraaijenbrink, who was a very key player in from the Board's side in understanding the ccTLD problems, translating them for other members of the Board, and building solutions such that we now have the ccNSO.

Alejandro Pisanty

Carthage and Rome



The first two meetings of the ccNSO members are sucessfully held

In Rome the ccNSO was inaugurated: 30 ccTLD members, with a minimum of 3 from each region

The first meeting of the ccNSO Council. Chris Disspain becomes the first chair of the ccNSO.

So the biggest distinction, and I think the critical one, is that CCs are answerable to their local communities.

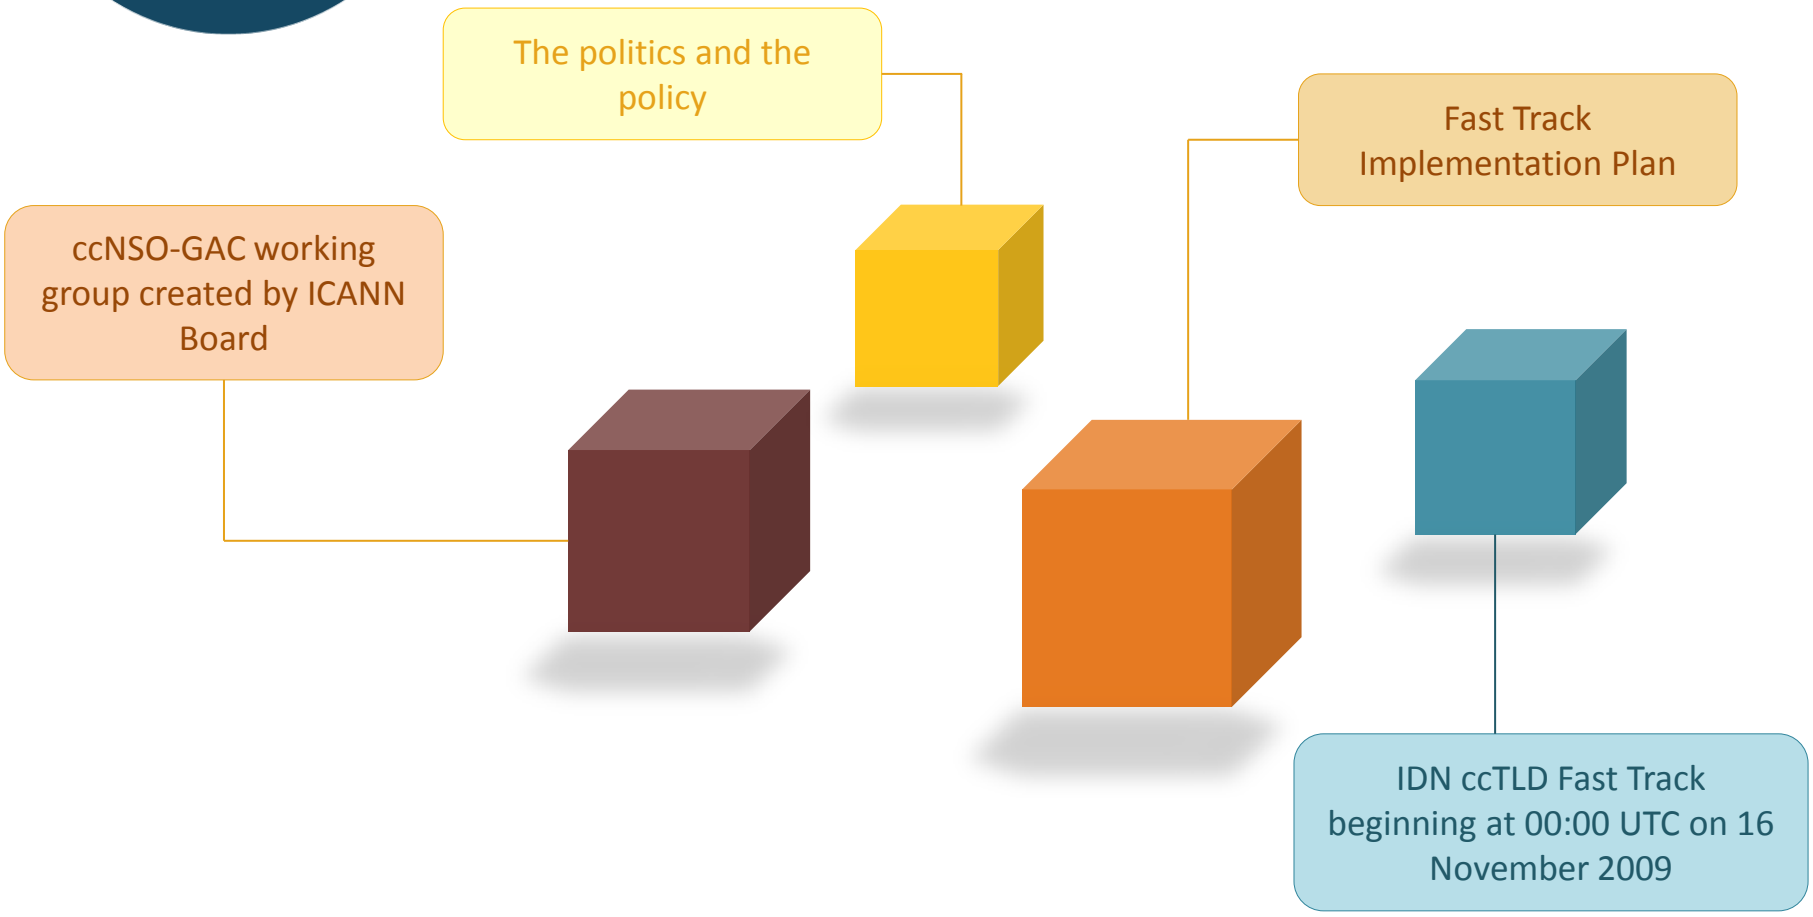
IDN ccTLDs Fast Track



The Board respectfully invites the Chairs of the ccNSO, GNSO, GAC, ALAC, and SSAC to set-up the IDNC Working Group and appoint members to this group as soon as possible and, when established, requests the IDNC Working Group to commence its work, in accordance with the Charter adopted by the ccNSO Council.

ICANN Board resolution

2007, Los Angeles

October 2009, Seoul

We've had really good cooperation between the ccNSO and the GAC from the very beginning in working together to solve the issues questions and working on what the proper questions were. [..] So it's a tribute, really, to the multistakeholder model in action.

Peter Dengate Thrush

This truly is a momentous time, [..] I think there is an enormous amount of good feeling and intention that the Internet be a balanced, extended, and open access for all peoples of the world.

Steve Crocker

It is exemplary cooperation between different constituencies and different organizations within ICANN in developing policy and developing methodology for rolling out IDNs.

Janis Karklins

So I think we're done on the IDNs. I'm waiting for the first one. Once the first one is done, then it's done. And then we can accept that it's been done and that's really great.
